

SATURDAY, JANUARY 17, 1835.

A little breeze occurred in the House, yesterday, which developed some indications of the present feeling of the members of the branch Federalists in that body—indications which were both amusing and instructive. A communication from the Governor of Georgia, accompanied the Governor's speech. His Excellency was pleased to say, with a sneer, not altogether becoming gubernatorial dignity, that he did not know that the Georgia Resolutions required any legislative action, and upon this hint the House echoed his sneer.

Without hearing the Resolutions, or so much as knowing the subject matter to which they related, a motion was made to lay them on the table. This was a little too hasty, and Mr Parsons, of Boston, moved that they should be read.

They were read, and turned out to be a sort of summary of the principles of genuine, old-fashioned, Jeffersonian Democracy.

Mr Dorr moved to lay them on the table, to repose there forever. No sooner was this carried, than Mr Rantoul, of Gloucester, moved that they should be taken up, referred to a select committee, and printed.—This motion operated like a bomb-shell thrown into the House; every body hastened to pour cold water on it, and to get it out of the way. The House showed itself as much afraid of these resolutions as a burnt child is of a firebrand. Mr Keyes declared that the House ought to have nothing to do with such subjects—(the Bank! Deposits! Protest! Indians! State Rights!) This is indeed a discovery. The House spent all last winter in the discussion of these very questions, and now it is best to smother them. But they cannot be smothered.

Mr George Blake declared his doubts upon the question, whether Senators ought to obey the instructions of their constituent States; he inclined to the negative—but he declared his perfect readiness to contend for the constitutionality of the Bank, and to denounce every principle of Democracy as contained in the resolutions. It would have been a pleasant spectacle to witness that venerable gentleman confessing the errors of his early life, and displaying the wisdom of his maturer years—denouncing as Toryism all his own original principles—denouncing them with the bitter hatred of an apostate—and proclaiming for genuine whiggery, what thirty years ago he baptized rank Toryism.

Mr Sturgis, of Boston, thought he never heard such strange doctrines before. Perhaps not—but he may hear them hereafter.

Mr Winthrop, of Boston, thought the doctrines of Democracy were dead. The protest had killed them. All we had to do was to bury them. And he put on a very pleasant face at the idea of the funeral.

The House decided that the people should not see this fearful document, for it seems they are not to be trusted with a paragraph of Democratic truth, any more than the Inquisition would trust a layman with the Bible.

The friends of Imprisonment for Debt have been laboring for months to bring all their forces to bear upon the present Legislature, in order to produce a repeal of the law passed during the last session abolishing imprisonment for debt. We believe that Governor Davis is more indebted for his re-election to his recommendation of the abolition of imprisonment for debt, in his first message, than to any other measure of his administration. The old law was a disgrace to the State, and a grievous burden upon the people thereof—it was the origin of the grossest injustice and cruelty—pampering a host of beings who lived upon the miseries of their fellow men, and whose hearts were as insensible to the cries of woe, as they were to honorable feelings. In all those States where the laws refuse to recognize and punish poverty as a crime, the people have become so ardently attached to their system that no consideration would induce them to surrender it—the interests of the whole community have been advanced by it—the creditor as well as the debtor's. The following is an extract from the late message of Governor Duncan of Illinois:—

"Illinois was the first, or among the first of the States, to adopt the humane and benevolent policy of abolishing imprisonment for debt, and the absurdity of placing misfortune upon a level with a crime, has never belied our statute books. By thus depriving the heartless of the temptation and the power to prosecute under color of law, we have the satisfaction to witness a happy and prosperous community, in which every honest man, however poor, has liberty secured to him, while the rich are comparatively free from the spirit of tyranny—a vice that is always engendered where the law can be made an instrument of oppression."

Notice to the Whig Committee of Safety.—The second anniversary of this illustrious body is fast approaching. On Thursday, March 6th, at Faneuil Hall, that patriotic band was selected, under the venerable title of "The Committee of Safety and Vigilance," to watch over the destinies of the Republic in general, and of the city in particular, for one year from the aforesaid 6th of March. As their time has now nearly expired, we humbly suggest the expediency of convening the citizens again in the Cradle of Liberty, for the purpose of continuing in existence a body upon whose superintendence may depend the future welfare of our beloved country. We shall do all in our power to hand down to a grateful posterity their names—which are as follows:—

James T. Austin,	Henry Edwards,
Charles Tappan,	J. Vincent Browne,
Henry Rice,	Jno. L. Dimmock,
Jonas B. Jewett,	Albert Fearing,
Zachariah Johnson,	John O. Sargent,

Jno. H. Pearson,	John G. Rogers,
R. C. Winthrop,	Ebenezer Hayward,

Theodore Lyman, Esq. has given five hundred dollars to the Charitable Association of the Boston Fire Department.

The Ice in our harbor is so far broken up, that the Steam Ferry Boat to East Boston commenced running yesterday.

SCRAPS FROM HISTORY AND LITERATURE.

After Mithridates had distinguished himself by various great exploits, he was at last brought to an untimely end through the malice of his sons, who obliged him to take poison (5140). He first gave some of it to his wives and daughters, and then drank it himself. But as his soul delayed its flight on account of the strength of his bodily constitution, he killed himself with the assistance of his soldier, and with difficulty let go his powerful spirit.

Monied Aristocracy.—This is the aristocracy which demands obsequious servility—which is jealous and fearful of being treated with disrespect; this is the aristocracy which is haughty, insolent and susceptible; which dreams of affronts, and gives them; this is the aristocracy which measures with an uncertain eye the height of an acquaintance, and which cuts and sneers.

A hit at fashionable Ladies.—Bulwer, in his France, says that the Paris police, since the Revolution, have completely driven away those improper ladies who used to horrify all more decent and respectable matrons, by appearing as indecorously dressed as if they had been going to a ball in good society.

Parisian Manners.—There are 20,000 persons every night at the theatres; five public libraries are constantly full; and one hundred cabinets de lecture. You will find about an equal number of celebrated dancing-masters, and of celebrated teachers of mathematics; and the municipality pays one third more for its fêtes than it does for its religion.

Christopher II. king of Denmark, made some alterations in a monastery, without leave of his bishops, and renewed the plough-tax, which, they alleged, was contrary to his coronation-oath, &c. An immediate insurrection followed, and proclamations were published, inviting all the friends of liberty to join against the king. He was driven from his kingdom, and with great difficulty restored; but never afterwards enjoyed any peace.

French and English.—Your Frenchman admits no one to be quite his equal—your Englishman worships every one richer than himself as undeniably his superior.

Parisian Climate.—Paris has in the year, on an average of 20 years, but 126 tolerably fine days.

The third volume of Sparks' American Biography. containing a history of "The Life and Treason of Arnold," has recently come from the press. The subjects embraced in this volume are so interesting to every American, that its sale will undoubtedly be very large. No man, probably, in the country, is capable of writing a more correct account of the memorable events connected with Arnold's life, than Mr Sparks, and no man, we venture to say, could more faithfully and successfully have executed the task he has just completed.

The Rev. Mr Blagden's Address at Plymouth, before the Pilgrim Society.—We have received a copy of this excellent address, published by Messrs Light & Horton, and read it with much pleasure. It is an appropriate and able production, evincing a sound and discriminating mind, and conveying the reflections of wisdom in a polished and flowing diction.

A meeting has been held in Hartford, (Ct.) for the purpose of investigating the subject of uniting the New Haven with the Boston and Worcester Rail Road, through a route which is most direct and advantageous to the citizens of Hartford. A committee was appointed to obtain the desired information, and to confer with committees appointed in other places, to report at a future meeting.

During the performance of the Stranger on Wednesday evening, such was the powerful effect of Miss Jarman's and Mr Terman's acting, that some of the oldest theatre-goers in the city were seen wiping tears from their eyes—and there was scarcely a person in the house, full as it was, who did not "play the woman." Much as we dislike the play, generally, we hope it will be repeated during the engagement of Miss J. and Mr T.

Mackerel Fishery.—We learn from the Barnstable papers that 27,654 barrels and 10,277 half do. have been cured in the towns of Barnstable, Yarmouth, Wellfleet and Provincetown, the last year.

For the Boston Morning Post.

Mr Editor.—A person by the name of John Story voted in Ward 12, at the last election. Two of the Whig Vigilant Committee who saw him vote expressed their suspicion that Mr Story was not naturalized, although his name was on the voting list. I wish to ask you whether, if Mr Story had voted for the democratic ticket, he would not have been considered qualified to be indicted, after the fashion of some late precedents? I only ask for information, and do not accuse Mr S. of having put in an illegal vote, knowing it to be such.

We understand that the Whig Committee "did not think it their business" to challenge Whig voters, whose qualifications were suspected.

Later from France.—By the packet ship Poland, Capt Anthony, we have received Paris and Havre papers both to the evening of December 16th. They contain very little news.—N. Y. Jour. Com.

The Poland brought despatches for Government from our Minister at Paris.

The proceedings in the Chamber of Deputies are one day later; but little business was done. An election took place for a Vice President of the Chamber, which resulted in the choice of M. Passy, one of the Ministers of the three days, and a decided opponent to the execution of the indemnity treaty.

A steamboat is building at Paris on Mr Burden's plan, for the purpose of navigating the Seine between Rouen and Paris. Some ridiculously exaggerated statements in relation to its introduction in this country, are contained in the Paris journals.

A Duel.—The Baltimore Chronicle of Monday says, "We understand that another affair of honor! was settled at Bladensburg, on Saturday morning last. The combatants were midshipmen belonging to the frigate United States, and had quarrelled in the Mediterranean. On the third fire, one of them was wounded in the knee, but we hope not dangerously. He is a citizen of Baltimore, and a young gentleman highly esteemed by his friends and acquaintances. They must indeed, have hot blood, who can repair to the field of honor in the present weather."

New Works in Press.—(Continued from the Boston Morning Post.)

No. 1.—The Art of combining the most powerful Interests in a nation, so as most effectually to put down the Rights and Liberties of the People—in 4 Parts:—

Part 1st. The art of converting the land owners and land occupants of the west into "Whigs," by the douceurs of Internal Improvement—by H. C.—, the church bargain-driver.

Part 2d. The art of converting the Manufacturers and their dependants in the north and east into "Whigs," by the douceurs of protecting Tariffs—edited by D. W.—, a convert of 1828.

Part 3d. The art of converting the Speculators and Usurers of all sections into "Whigs," by douceurs of monopoly and charters of exclusive privileges—by an enemy to Gold hunting.

Part 4th. The art of Financing; or showing how to empty the Treasury for the benefit of one class of interests; how to fill it again for the benefit of another class of interests; how to secure the support of all monied men in all sections of the country to both these salutary operations; and how to induce a coalition of these interests to plunder the people, by enabling them to play into each other's hands—by H. C.—, and D. W.—. The whole preceded by an Essay, entitled "The art of shifting the burden of taxation from the shoulders of the wealthy to those of the poor—in order to render the latter, in a short course of time, so degraded, as to render absolute government and civil slavery "expedient," and thus effect a restoration of monarchy in the United States—by the same authors: the arguments compiled from English speech-makers.

No. 2.—Stop! Thief!—proving that executive patronage is dangerous: because the money paid out under it is given to government officers for services rendered, as salaries—which salaries are fixed by the legislature—while the qualifications of the officers are judged by the Senate: and further proving that hundreds of millions paid out by Congress to promote the interests of land-owners and manufacturers, is too small patronage for the Legislature.

No. 3.—Superiority of Legislative, over Military despotism—by which it is proved that swindling our own countrymen through complicated systems of foreign legislation is easier and safer than robbing foreign nations in open war, at the risk of life and treasure; preceded by a comparison between the ancient and modern systems of policy—by a lover of English liberty.

No. 4.—Construction: or the art of turning Republics, even when protected by Constitutions, into despotic governments in 60 years—by D. W.—.

No. 5.—Standard of Virtue and Intelligence—showing that money is the true measure of THAT KIND of wisdom and virtue which is approved by the talents and respectability of the U. States—and that a paper currency is the only true standard of value—by R. W.—.

No. 6.—The Goose with Golden Eggs: or the art of fertilizing the rich man's field by the sweat of the poor man's brow—an Essay, showing 1st. that "the people" is the "goose," having neither sense nor virtue enough to keep it from starvation or suicide; and 2d, that the best policy is to give the goose no more food or liberty than what is absolutely necessary to support life, so as to enable her to hatch golden eggs. ("The art of shifting the burden of taxation," &c., explains the best mode of stealing the eggs without the goose finding it out.)—To which is added a defence of despotism—by B. W. L.—.

No. 7.—Human Laws the origin of Rights—an Essay to prove that men, by becoming legislators, lose their character as moral beings, and acquire the power of nullifying the constitution of nature as ordained by the Creator, and of sacrificing the Rights of the people to the interests of that portion of the nation who will put and keep them in office—also that the possession of power, instead of creating duty in rulers toward the people, confers on the rulers rights over the people,—and that Might is Right. Concluding with an attack on the Agrarian principles of the Declaration of Independence—by a Whig, aided by B. W. L.—.

No. 8.—"Expediency" the only Justice—with an Essay explaining how the continuance of any abuse in government may be made "expedient," if it can only be once fairly established; and that the creation of privileges by peaceful legislation is a sure mode of establishing abuses, which the rich, who reap the advantages of such abuses, will always find it for their interest to uphold—preceded by illustrations to prove that wealth is power, and that wealth can purchase "talents and respectability"—By an advocate of "the greatest good of the greatest number," i. e. "the interest of the majority."

No. 9.—The Art of Coalition, or the Perfect Negotiator, showing how to combine the most influential interests, so as to create majorities.* By H. C.—.

No. 10.—True Eloquence, proving that appeals to reason, justice and humanity are inferior to appeals to the pocket. By a Lawyer.

No. 11.—Dead men can't defend themselves, or the art of calumniating with the greatest ease and at the least risk. By a Familiar Letter-writer. Preceded by an essay to prove the uselessness of historical knowledge, and the benefits of being 100 years behind the "spirit of the age." By a friend of the author last named.

No. 12.—Measure for Measure, a tract to prove that all appeals to the passions and prejudices of the rich against the poor, who look upon property as PREY, for the plunder of which they are always clamorous, is highly moral and proper; and ending with a solemn protest against the poor being excited against the rich. By the author of "How to make great men little," "Stop Thief," and "Property the only true basis of political power."

* This work is a kind of summary of No. 1. The author, in the preface, expresses his regret at the want of harmony between interests; and the first chapters point out the unfortunate fact that interests will split, and far one against another. The concluding part of the work shows that coalition is the only remedy, and points out those interests which, in the United States, are best calculated to play into each other's hands. The author, in the last chapter, remarks that,—"leaving the whole body of the people free, both rich and poor, powerful and weak, the conflicting interests of mankind get accommodated by mutual consent. Now, the only way to secure the absolute preponderance of the rich over the poor, and the strong over the weak, is to favor the rich and influential, by laws which confer on them peculiar privileges and power. This is the only method, in a republican government, of subjecting the vulgar, if peculiar privileges be given to the poor, the rich will always buy them up; so that peculiar privileges is a most useful engine of power; since if the poor use them for a month, the rich get them after a month is past, and enjoy them for years."

MASSACHUSETTS LEGISLATURE.

In Senate, Friday, Jan. 16.—Petition of the Lewis What Company for authority to purchase and hold certain real estate; referred to Committee on Mercantile Affairs and Insurance; sent down.

Committee on Education reported a bill to incorporate the Boston Asylum and Farm School for Indigent Boys; read, and made the order of the day for to-morrow.

Petitions—of the African Humane Society for alteration of their charter, referred; of the town of Nantucket, for an alteration of the License Laws, laid on the table.

Adj. House of Representatives, Friday, Jan. 17.—After prayers were over and the Journal read—The Committee on Education reported that Ebenezer Luce of Chilmark, who petitioned to have his son Israel Luce admitted into the Asylum for Deaf and Dumb at Hartford, have leave to withdraw.

Same Committee reported, that it is expedient, that the Documents accompanying the Governor's Message, relative to the Survey be printed; report laid on the table.

Same Committee reported a Bill to incorporate the Beverly Academy; read and ordered to 2d reading.

Petition of sundry persons for change of names referred.

Ordered, That the Committee on Manufactures inquire into the expediency of amending the laws relative to mill privileges.

Petition of Solon Jenkins and others for a bank in South Boston, referred; of Moses Gill and others for alteration of the boundary line between Walpole and Dedham, referred; of Jonathan H. Cobb for further legislative encouragement in the culture of silk, referred, and ordered to be printed; of Lemuel Blake et al. for an additional act to incorporate the Roxbury India Rubber Company, referred; of the Pawtucket Turnpike Corporation, for alteration of tolls on said turnpike, referred; of the inhabitants of Middlefield, in aid of said petition, referred.

The report of the receiving Committee on the Petition of the town of Pembroke, ordered by the last Legislature—read and referred to Committee on Towns.

Ordered, that the Committee on the Militia inquire into the expediency of referring the subject of amending the Militia laws, to a joint special Committee to report to the next Legislature.

Ordered, that the papers relative to the pauper system be taken from the files of the last session and referred to a Committee.

Petition of the inhabitants of Chester, for alteration in the tolls and removal of the gates on the Chester Turnpike—referred.

A communication was received from Asa W. Wildes acknowledging his acceptance of the office of Counselor, to which he had been elected.

Ordered, that the committee on the Judiciary enquire into the expediency of making such changes in the Judiciary courts of the city of Boston, as will facilitate the despatch of the business thereof; sundry petitions presented and severally referred.

A warm and animated debate on the subject of referring to a committee a communication from the Governor of Georgia to the Executive of this Commonwealth, it being among the documents which accompanied the Governor's Message, it was, however, by a unanimous vote, laid on the table.

Bill to authorize a Fire Department in N. Bedford—passed to a third reading.

Bills—granting to the United States, the jurisdiction of a neck of land near Marblehead—also that of Straightmouth Island, near Cape Ann, were read a second time and laid on the table.

The following singular circumstance took place within the last few weeks:—A number of English, mostly medical gentlemen, now in Paris, being at dinner together, the conversation turned on scientific subjects. A Dr B. took out of his pocket Dr Herison's lately invented instrument to measure the energy of the pulse's pulsations, called the Shygmometre; one of the company, Dr S. in a careless way, and as if to feed the conversation, stretched out his hand to have the energy of his pulsation ascertained. Dr B. examined it with great care and attention, and laying down his instrument, said with a solemn countenance, "I would not for the world have such a pulse." "Why?" answered Dr S.; and notwithstanding he then felt quite well, the next day he expired in a fit of apoplexy.—French paper.

Fire at Portland.—A block of wooden buildings on the east side of Exchange street, and occupied by E. Mansfield, as an iron and junk store; Webster & Gorham, Auction and Commission merchants; and David Robinson, confectioner, were consumed Tuesday morning. As near as can be ascertained the fire originated in the chamber of Mr Mansfield's shop, either by the funnel or from spontaneous combustion. $2000 insured on the block at the Manufacturer's Office, Boston—1000 on Mr Robinson's stock at the Etna office, Hartford—and 500 on that of Messrs Webster and Gorham, at the Ocean office, Portland.

"Newspaper Writers and Bugs."—The editor of the Boston Transcript has published several extracts said to be part of Mrs Fanny Kemble Butler's forthcoming journal. There seems to be a dispute among the fraternity as to the authenticity of the documents.—We know nothing of the matter and care less. If Mrs B. did write them, we give her credit for one thing, and that is, her utter detestation of "newspaper writers and bugs;" but should really like to know what sort of bugs the lady had in her head at the time.—N. Y. Spirit of the Times.

Robbery at Topsfield.—Mr J. C. Davis, who arrived at Topsfield on Thursday, in the eastern stage, from Dover, N. H. states that he was robbed of his pocket book, containing $1700, done up in packages of bank bills of $100 each. Mr D. did not proceed in the stage in which he arrived at Topsfield, and did not discover his loss until after it had set out for Boston.—Finally, when search was made, the empty pocket book was found behind an outhouse.—Trans.

"Where's Brummel? dish'd!"—This extraordinary character who, for a time, ruled in the fashionable world with undisputed sway, is lately deceased. He was "farmed out" in a town in France at £80 a year, by a few of his former club friends at Whites.

Advertising.—An editor in Illinois says that the merchants in his vicinity are too modest to advertise their stocks, and that he will give a list of them so soon as he has leisure.

A ludicrous caricature has been got up in London.—It represents a crown falling from the head of the King, and the Duke of Wellington preventing it from tumbling with the point of his sword.

Another whimsical caricature has made its appearance, in which the Duke of Wellington is represented as composing the whole of the Cabinet, and transacting alone the business of each of his Majesty's ministers, and seems highly delighted while enjoying his plurality of offices. This monopoly on the part of his Grace is very obnoxious to the political aspirants who are longing for place, its patronage, and above all its emoluments.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

The undersigned, in behalf of the members of the Charitable Association of the Boston Fire Department, acknowledges with gratitude, the receipt of a check on the U. S. Branch Bank for Five Hundred Dollars, as a donation from Theodore Lyman Esq, for the benefit of the funds of the institution.
